Financial associations, financial institutions, other critical infrastructure sectors, as well as U.S. government agencies work collaboratively to develop and participate in various cyber exercises. The exercises simulate a variety of plausible cybersecurity incidents or attacks and are designed to improve public and private sector policies, procedures, and response capabilities so that in the event of a real incident of national significance there are established relationships and processes already in place to ensure a rapid response and recovery effort writ large. If you are interested in participating or would like more information, please contact Tom Wagner at twagner@sifma.org.
